No, thank you

Dear Editor,

Several years have passed since the Lambda Center opened its doors to serve the gay/lesbian community. It asked the community to support it financially, and the community responded, allowing the Center to establish, find itself, set short- and long-range goals.

The time is at hand for the Center to account for itself. It can no longer state it needs money without some accounting.

The recent Lambda Fair had a $2 "donation" at the gate. Why didn't the Center have a higher usage fee for vendors? Why wasn't the "donation" mentioned in any of the advertisements for the Fair?

Why did a volunteer at the Center ask me, "What's the big deal about another $2 to you, if you give $100 each year?" when I inquired about the "donation?" Well, it is a big deal to me. Would the Center prefer that I drop all future donations in order to pay the $2 donation? To receive a guest pass (as vendors received) would have been a nice "thank you" for being a Lambda 400 donor. For that matter, why hasn't the Center ever sent me a thank you letter for the monies I have contributed this year and in years past?

Also, why didn't Joanna Cassese return my phone call to discuss this matter?

It is time for each of us to stop thinking of the Center as a gay charity, and to start viewing it as any other charity, and decide whether or not it is deserving of our financial support.

Where's the kiss?

Dear Editor,

I am writing belatedly to express my disgust with the May 2nd episode of Northern Exposure. The episode depicted the gay wedding of two men who are infrequent characters on the show.

What pissed me off about the show was that the kiss that follows the exchange of vows in real-life weddings and in all weddings acted out on stage, screen and tube was omitted! Instead, the camera panned to the expressions of the friends and family of the newly wedded couple. The omission of the kiss—a kiss that everyone expects—was awkward, ridiculous and blatant in its homophobia.

If the TV executives are going to join the 20th century by featuring gays in their programs, they should let them be portrayed as fully human. Everyone kisses. The omission of the kiss gave me this message: "Yes, we will show gays on TV, but we know that you, the straight audience, really don't want to see 'them' kiss." Bullshit! Yes, I do.

In April, the program ET did a piece on the upcoming gay wedding episode. The actor playing one of the gay men said, "This episode isn't about the kiss." How absurd! What wedding in the history of the world isn't about the kiss?

I have written the producers of the show, John Falsey and Joshua Brand, to say my piece. I think that anyone, gay or straight like me, who was offended should follow suit.

Sincerely,
Stacy Goldenberg

Production support requested

Dear Editor,

I am turning to you because you were a generous supporter of Gay Youth, an educational video that is having a successful nationwide distribution—nearly 400 copies of Gay Youth and its 16-page study guide are currently in the hands of educators and people who care for youth. I know Gay Youth is saving lives, and you helped make that happen.

I'd like you to lend your financial support to another very important video project that has the potential to educate and create change for gay and lesbian people. The working title of this project is Family Values.

I'm sure you are aware of the insidious and vocal religious right. You may not be as aware of the well funded and extremely well organized grassroots effort that has taken over the Republican party in six states. Christian fundamentalists are using gay and lesbian people as the scapegoats they need to raise millions of dollars to further their agenda. It was, of course, the fundamentalists who maneuvered the U.S. Senate nomination of Oliver North in Virginia. Bob Hattoy, a gay man with AIDS and liaison to the White House, says, "They want us dead."

This is especially painful for me because my own father is very active as a Christian fundamentalist and sits on the steering committee of Jay Grimstead's organization, The Coalition on Revival. Rus Walton, who claims, "the American family is God's superstructure," has not had anything to do with me—his own daughter—for fifteen years, because I am a lesbian.

My real family, the one that has loved and supported me since I came out at 25, is my lesbian family, and I want to use these experiences to confront the anti-gay rhetoric of the radical right.

I have designed Family Values, a 58-minute educational video, specifically for national broadcast. If we are successful, millions of people will see it.

I am working with the Film Arts Foundation, a nonprofit group that advises and sponsors independent producers in the Bay Area. So far, we have raised $41,000 from private organizations. We need another $40-$50,000 to finish the project.

Please join us. $500 will put your name in the credits, $250 will put your name in our program at the premiere screening next winter. Any amount that you can afford to give, no matter how small, will help us move forward. Checks can be made payable to Film Arts Foundation, c/o Pam Walton, Box 391025, Mtn. View, CA 94039; tel. 415/960-3414.

Many, many thanks!
Pam Walton

Gay rights bill introduced in Congress

The introduction of the Employment Non-Discrimination Act of 1994, which will prohibit employment discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation, has, in a way, been a long journey for me.

Twenty-five years ago, I ran for my first elected office as supervisor for the City and County of San Francisco. When I did so, I was told of the very real problem of job discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation, and the need for anti-discrimination legislation.

and when I did, one of the first pieces of legislation that I authored was an amendment, to San Francisco's Human Rights Ordinance, to prohibit employment discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation. Frankly, the legislation languished in committee for some time. Eventually, as President of the Board of Supervisors, I called it out of committee, whereupon it passed with strong support. As far as I know, it was the first such legislation in any major jurisdiction in the country.

After that ordinance was adopted, and over the years, that I served as a Supervisor and Mayor of San Francisco, I came to know many gay and lesbian people who excelled in their professions. Attorneys, physicians, educators, judges, journalists, airline pilots, elected officials, (one of whom is now an assistant secretary on the Administration) and business men and women in virtually every field endeavour. Many of these people broke new ground. And many excelled.

It is interesting that, on more than one occasion, various people remarked to me that they could not have accomplished in their home towns what they were able to accomplish professionally in San Francisco.

Well, some twenty years later, I'm pleased to report that no businesses went bankrupt as a result of that ordinance. No employers faced hardships. On the contrary, many companies found that the principal of hiring and promoting the best-qualified employees, based solely on merit, yielded the most productive work force.

That principle which saw its beginning as a groundbreaking ordinance in a relatively small West Coast city will, today, be introduced into the United States Senate. Crossing this frontier carries a very special significance for me.

These are tough economic times for our country.

Health bill fails in Senate

by Marghe Covino
MGW/Staff

While the Domestic Partners Registration Bill, (AB 2810, authored by Richard Katz, D-Los Angeles) sailed through the Assembly, a lesser known Senate Bill, SB 2061, has been struggling to stay alive.

On June 1, Senate Bill 2061, authored by State Senator Gary Hart, D-Santa Barbara, failed passage on the Senate Floor by two votes.

SB 2061 allows local governments and public employee groups which obtain health coverage under the Public Employee Retirement System (PERS) to extend those health benefits to domestic partners. Health insurance benefits for domestic partners would be elective, not mandatory, for the more than 100 employee groups under PERS. The bill was reconsidered on Thursday, June 16 and passed the Senate Floor by a vote of 21-16.

Under the provisions of SB 2061, domestic partners must certify with the county or city in which they reside, that they live together and are economically interdependent and responsible for one another's welfare.

SB 2061 goes next to the Assembly. Info: LIFE Lobby, 444-0424.▼

Night Of The Long Knives commemorated

by Marghe Covino
MGW/Staff

A candlelight observance at Sacramento's Lambda Community Center, commemorated two historic events which occurred June 28, the 25th anniversary of Stonewall and the 60th anniversary of The Night Of The Long Knives, the beginning of the persecution of gays and lesbians in Nazi Germany. Organizer of the event, Jerry Sloan of Project Tocsin said he wanted to do something to celebrate the coalescing of the gay liberation movement at Stonewall but also wanted people to know about and, "never forget, the Night Of The Long Knives."

Sloan observed that the events of 60 years ago have been overlooked in both gay and mainstream history—but has a great deal of significance today. "First of all we should look at history and see that Ernst Roehm, supposedly a close friend to Hitler, and his men were the ultimate repressed assimilationists. They were the ones who helped put Hitler into power. Then Hitler turned on them with a bloody massacre to purge the Reich of homosexuals."

The Night of the Long Knives occurred two years before the infamous Kristallnacht which launched the pogrom against the Jews. Like Kristallnacht, the Night of the Long Knives was the launching pad to arrest gay men and lesbians and other "deviants" and put them in concentration camps.

A year later, Paragraph 175 was instituted in Hitler's wartime Germany that strengthened anti-gay laws and was used to outlaw even 'homosexual thoughts'.

Estimated numbers of gays and lesbians who died in the camps and through medical experimentation range between 750,000 to 1.3 million. Even when the camps were liberated by the Allies, the ordeal for gays and lesbians did not end; many were rearrested as political prisoners and put in jail.

The ceremony featured entertainers, speakers, members of the Jewish community, and a reading of the gay holocaust poem, Invisible Triangles by poet Michael Gorman.

Sloan said, "The lesson is clear. But assimilationists in our community need to hear it. It doesn't matter how good a queer you are. In their minds, the only good queer is a dead queer. Bringing them to political power will only get you killed. The assimilationists helped bring Ronald Reagan and George Bush to power and they've not taken any responsibility for it—and once again they want to lead us down the path to destruction."

"Gay men and lesbians, come out and learn your history," Sloan warned, "or be doomed to repeat it."▼

Looking at the LL Bean connection

Outing the far right

By Marghe Covino
MGW/Staff

Occasionally, as I read through the voluminous material I cover each month, I come across the odd fact or occurrence which leads me to wonder whether, like Alice, I've stepped through the Looking Glass. I'd like to share some of these factoids with you but first, I should explain that I believe we are involved in a deadly battle, one which will literally determine life and death issues for gay and lesbian people. Therefore, some of these items may carry more or less importance depending upon the point of view.

The Council For National Policy (CNP) is a semi-secret organization with a membership that is a Who's Who of Homophobia. The organization appears to be the conduit for funds to the Religious Right. They are stepping up activities in anti-gay campaigns across the country, leading the charge either through financing or public leadership. Where there is a concerted movement to suppress gay and lesbian civil rights, women's rights, choice, right to die, etc., you will find the money and membership of the CNP.

The leader of the anti-gay initiative in the state of Maine was Linda Bean-Folkers, former Chair, and current board member of L.L. Bean, the famous, multi-million dollar outdoors/catalogue company.

Bean-Folkers is also a member of the CNP. Imagine my surprise to find an article in the June issue of Out Magazine recommending purchase of an L.L. Bean duffel bag with an accompanying 800 number. I called, and sure enough, it was the L.L. Bean Company in the state of Maine. I have to start checking some of this stuff out. I've got to take a look at some of new "gay personas" emerging on the national scene and get to know about their credentials.

For instance, Mel White, ghost writer to Billy Graham, Pat Robertson and Jerry Falwell, who came out as a gay man, is accepted almost uncritically by the gay community in spite of the aid and support he gave to those men in their crusades against the that community.

White was privy to the high councils of their power and knew their secrets—has he revealed anything of value to our community that wasn't already known? He spent 25 years aiding and abetting the enemy and another 10 years after his divorce in silence, although he was living with a lover, before he began to tell his story—but was that just a prequel to his book sales? Before White achieves the rank of a gay Martin Luther King, he's got some down deep reminiscing to do...

David Brock, the gay man who dug up the Arkansas police officers who made sexual allegations against President Clinton is the same David Brock who wrote the so-called expose on Anita Hill. For years Brock has written for the American Spectator, a radical right wing publication. This year Brock won the Winston Churchill Award—bestowed on him by...the CNP.

Bruce Bawer, author of A Place At The Table, was the long time film critic for New Criterion, a sister publication of Commentary, an ultra-right wing publication.

Marvin Liebman is all over the place in the gay community, writing, teaching, mentoring, sending letters and raising money from the gay community in order "to become a role model for young conservatives." All of this from a man who never met a dictator he couldn't love, or a death squad he couldn't support and raise money for. My only hope is that he does become a role model for young conservatives—if they emulate him, none will come out until they're 67 years old and, like him, until then they'll stay out of the gay community.

CNP members, like Lou Sheldon, however, can be relied upon to keep their dirty hands on the gay community and continue to inflict their denial and self-hatred upon us.

I have to be aware of the hypocrisy aimed at us and to speak out about it at every opportunity. While Phyllis Schlafly (also a CNP member) supports organizations which would suppress gay and lesbian civil rights, her gay son lives at home in order to help with his invalid father.

While Paul Stoos says the religious right is not asking for the death penalty for gays "right now,"—and is willing to predict that in 20 years "if gays continue to do what they're doing and the public gets to see it, and if they continue to impact the public health dollar—it's not going to be a problem to get it to happen."

Stoos, President of California Gun Owners, the perfect Christian soldier, an obedient Abraham with the knife at Isaac's neck, has a gay son.

This month's newsletter from Beverly LeHaye of Concerned Women for America (also a member of CNP) is dedicated to the evils of homosexuality. While LeHaye says, "As Christians we have genuine compassion for homosexuals because they can be helped to change their lifestyle. There are many fine organizations ready to help them." Imagine, Beverly and her husband, both leading figures in the religious right (her husband a past president of CNP) allegedly don't know about one of their own children—or surely that child would have been sent to "one of those many fine organizations" for help.

One common thread runs through it all. They generate money. They take no chances with labors of love—these folks get rewarded with the long green.

Consider this: The priest, Richard Neuhaus, who put together an Accord between the Catholic Church and the evangelicals and organized the Ramsey Colloquial, recently received a grant of $657,000 from the Bradley Foundation which will enable him to step up the attack on the gay community. According to Rethinking Schools, an urban educational journal, in recent years the conservative Bradley Foundation has supported ultra radical conservative causes to the tune of over $25 million. While gay and lesbian community centers around the country struggle to keep their doors open, we threw a billion dollar party in New York in June to celebrate Stonewall 25 and the Gay Games; gay bars are serving Coors; and gay magazines are advertising L.L. Bean duffel bags. ▼

The 25th Anniversary of Stonewall was celebrated in San Francisco June 19th with a parade that included the outrageous, the everyday person in shorts and tank top, organizations, and politicians. Tens of thousands of people attended the celebration which, according to a spectator, "gets longer every year." ▼

Good advice

In a recent letter to advice columnist "Dear Abby," a reader asked: "My 2-year-old granddaughter is being allowed overnight visits with a young lesbian. Would you or your experts allow a beautiful little girl overnight visits with a lesbian?" Abby responded: "Your granddaughter is in no greater danger with a lesbian sitter than she would be with a heterosexual sitter. Homosexuality and pedophilia are not synonymous!" Abby also cited recent research indicating that most child molesters are heterosexual, often the partner of a relative of the molested child. Comments to "Dear Abby" at Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

Look who's playing the fool

A feature in the May 8 issue of Parade magazine, "In Step With: Meredith Baxter," written by James Brady, contends that playing lesbian roles is some sort of cruel punishment bestowed upon straight actresses.

Reporting on his interview with the actress, Brady writes: "I noted in previous acting jobs Meredith had been an addict, an alcoholic, a lesbian mother, a bulimic and a murderer. So I asked, 'What have they got against you, Meredith?' 'But that's the fun stuff to do!' she said, exploding into laughter. 'And don't forget, I also played a retarded person and a schizoid.'"

Send comments to Larry Smith, Managing Editor, and James Brady, columnist, Parade magazine, 711 Third Ave, NY 10017.

Keeping hope on-line

Computer bulletin board systems (BBS) continue to be attacked in the latest campaign to "save our children" from homosexuality. Bigots are urging America On Line (AOL) to restrict or censor lesbian and gay subjects in order to "protect" young computer users. Protests also have been lodged against AOL for "allowing homosexuals to freely enter the (chat) rooms" and gain "access to children." AOL's "Teen Chat" service—which sometimes includes discussions of sexual orientation—has been condemned as a hunting ground for pedophiles.

For young lesbians and gays, BBS systems can provide a rare opportunity to access accurate information, engage in peer contact, and discover hope in a homophobic world. If you are an AOL subscriber, post a message in the "President's Roundtable" area supporting the continuation of and open access to the teen issues areas. Otherwise, express your concern to AOL at 800/827-6364.

Mac and Martina

Unless they are closeted, lesbian and gay athletes are not offered many product endorsements. To the company's credit, Apple Computers recently used Martina Navratilova in their advertisements—in the recent issue of Out magazine and in the program for the Gay Games.

Send comments to Anne Winkler, Apple Computers, 20525 Mariani, Mail Stop 76-4 AD, Cupertino, CA 95074.

School Board report on JROTC

The San Francisco Board of Education released a report on the School District's Junior Reserve Officer Training Program (JROTC). The City Attorney undertook the JROTC investigation after several cadets were severely beaten by the rest of their drill team in February.

The School Board condemned the beatings and pledged to continue the investigation. Despite evidence that JROTC programs teach hatred and violence, most Board members asserted that the beatings were an isolated incident. According to Board President Leland Yee, "they represented the exception to a program that has been and will continue to promote teamwork, cooperation and positive social values."

School Board member and supervisorial candidate Tom Ammiano dissented strongly. Ammiano argued that the program should be eliminated and encouraged the community to assist the Board in finding creative alternatives to the "services" provided by JROTC.

FCC is full of it

The Federal Communications Commission has fined radio station KNON (Dallas, Texas) $12,500 for broadcasting a song entitled "I Wanna Be a Homosexual" by the gay punk band Screaming Weasel. The song was broadcast on Lambda Weekly, KNON's 11-year-old lesbian/gay show.

The lyrics of "I Wanna Be a Homosexual" include: "Shock the middle class, take it up your ass." According to the FCC, however, the fine was not based on the song's sexual lyrics, but on the use of the word "shit." The last line of the song declares: "You're so full of shit, why don't you admit you don't have the balls to be queer."

The FCC fine resulted from a complaint filed by Wyatt Roberts, director of the American Family Association (AFA) of Dallas County, a heterosexual supremacist organization. Claiming a victory for the homophobic cause, Roberts announced the KNON ruling in the May 1994 issue of the AFA newsletter, Christians & Society Today. AFA members across the country have been encouraged to file similar complaints with the FCC.

The FCC was not acting against the song's homosexual content. Still, the FCC should be encouraged to reconsider the rationality of a policy that defines the word "shit" as obscene and "patently offensive."

Share your thoughts with the FCC, Mass Media Bureau, 2021 M St., NW, Room 8210, Washington, DC 20554, tel. 202/632-7048.

Bigot Scouts of America

In the latest fundraising letter from the Boy Scouts of America, SF/Bay Area Council, BSA Executive Vice President Thomas Bennet writes: "The national Boy Scout policy prohibits admitting declared homosexual persons into membership or into adult volunteer leadership in scouting. This commitment to family values—the strength of the Boy Scouts and America—has been costly to us. Wells Fargo Bank, the Clorox Corp, PG&E, Levi Strauss, and Kaiser Hospitals, have followed the United Way in denying eligibility for funding to the Bay Area Boy Scouts."

Contribute your thoughts on "family values" to Thomas R. Bennett, Executive V.P., BSA, SF/Bay Area Council, 124 Beale St., Ste. 402, SF, CA 94105, tel. 415/543-8780, fax 415/543-0863.

Gaylactic Network expands

The Gaylactic Network, Inc., an alliance of autonomous organizations for gay, lesbians, bisexuals and their friends who share a common interest in the genres of science fiction, fantasy and horror, announced that its Board Officers will be extending provisional status to its first chapter outside of the United States.

Northern Fey Folk, of Winnipeg, Canada, has submitted a request for recognitions as an Affiliate of the Gaylactic Network, Inc., and will be voted into the Gaylactic Network during its upcoming convention, Gaylaxicon V, July 15-17, at the Holiday Inn Crowne Plaza, Rockville, MD.▼

Jewelry wanted for fundraiser

The Sacramento Discovery Shop of the American Cancer Society presents Jewelry Extravaganza Saturday, August 13. The Discovery Shop is a resale boutique used to raise money for the American Cancer Society's local programs, including breast cancer programs. The Society receives no government funding.

Donations of jewelry for this fundraiser would be appreciated, and will help in the fight against cancer. Donations must be received by July 31, and can be dropped off at the American Cancer Society Discovery Shop, 2744 Marconi Ave, between 10am and 4pm. Info: 484-0227.▼

NGLTF states position on NAMBLA

The Board of Directors of the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force (NGLTF) adopted the following resolution regarding the North American Man Boy Love Association (NAMBLA).

"NGLTF condemns all abuse of minors, both sexual and any other kind, perpetrated by adults. Accordingly, NGLTF condemns the organizational goals of NAMBLA and any other such organizations.

"NGLTF specifically notes that numerous studies have shown that the vast majority of child molestation is committed by heterosexual men, usually with members of their own family."▼

DIFFA launches campaign

When the first Safer Sex is Hot Sex campaign was launched four years ago, it was awash in controversy owing to its provocative imagery and blunt language. Though people are now more comfortable with the message, this year's effort—produced by the Design Industries Foundation Fighting AIDS (DIFFA) and funded by the Red Hot Organization—strives to be just as powerful.

The photography by Steven Klein is set in natural forest settings, which frame the five couples in trees and shaded light—but the Safer Sex is Hot Sex message comes across loud and clear.

T-shirts are being produced by Don't Panic!, 800/457-2642; they cost $18. A portion of the proceeds will be donated to DIFFA.

Posters are also available from A Different Light Bookstore for $12.95 plus shipping and handling, 800/343-4002.▼

Canadians gather in July

The Divers/Cité pride festival returns to Montreal July 28-31, celebrating the history, culture and pride of the Quebec lesbian, gay and bisexual communities.

In 1977, Quebec was the first jurisdiction on the continent to ban discrimination based on sexual orientation. Info: 514/285-4011.▼

Foundation forms

Unity Expo, a national tour that provides a forum for corporate America and the gay/lesbian community to come together in mutual support, is being produced by the Unity Foundation.

Corporate sponsors include SKYY Vodka, Miller Brewing Company, American Express, Capitol Records, Fruitopia - Coca Cola Bottling Co., Capitol Drugs, PowerBar, Ben & Jerry's, LA Cellular, Blue Cross of California, Sole Water Co., Ten Percent

Magazine and The Advocate, among others.

The Expo will take place at the San Francisco Fashion Design Center Aug. 13 & 14. Info: 415/292-3230.▼

Guide to partner benefits

A new eight-page guide to domestic partner benefits in the media industry gathers some of the best information to-date on the cost of extending benefits.

The guide examines the experience of ten media companies and six Fortune 1000 companies that offer domestic partner benefits. Produced by the National Lesbian and Gay Journalists Association (NLGJA), the guide also uses data on nine other cities and companies.

The week the guide debuted at the newspaper publisher's convention, The New York Times finalized a contract with the Newspaper Guild that includes benefits for same-sex domestic partners of union members. The Minneapolis Star-Tribune recently agreed to offer domestic partner benefits beginning sometime this fall.

More than 100 companies, cities and universities across the country now offer domestic partner benefits that include health coverage.

Info: NLGJA, Box 423048, San Francisco, 94141-3048 (Guide $2).▼

Coalition offers strategy for fighting Right

Community activists fending off assaults by the Radical Right on their schools, libraries and personal lives can now draw on the experiences of dozens of groups.

A coalition of more than 60 national and local organizations has produced an organizing guide titled How to Win: A Practical Guide to Defeating the Radical Right in Your Community.

The manual includes articles on a wide range of topics, from organizing broad-based coalitions and monitoring school board activity, to using polling data and delivering an effective speech.

The 150 page manual costs $25. People are encouraged to duplicate and distribute the manual as widely as possible. Info: 202/384200.▼

Oregon continues to fight OCA

Once again the citizens of the state of Oregon are under siege. The Oregon Citizens Alliance, a political organization of the radical right, is sponsoring an anti-gay ballot measure that would deny gay and lesbian citizens their most basic civil rights and legalize discrimination.

This measure is nothing more than a repackaged version of Measure 9, the discriminatory measure Oregonians rejected in 1992.

Support Our Communities Political Action Committee (SOC PAC) formed in March of 1993 to fight a string of local OCA sponsored anti-gay initiatives across Oregon and is leading the opposition to the OCA's latest statewide discrimination measure. Victory in November hinges on the assistance of literally thousands of freedom-loving people in Oregon and across the country. SOC PAC needs the help of Americans everywhere who believe in equal rights for all citizens.

Info: SOC PAC, Box 40625, Portland, OR 97240; 503/222-6151.▼

Bias banned for Navy civilians

Navy Secretary John Dalton has banned discrimination against the service's civilian employees based on sexual orientation.

The directive applies to the service's 252,000 civilian employees and is in line with regulations issued by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

The Navy is the first service to issue such a statement; others are expected to follow.

The policy does not apply to the Navy's 480,000 uniformed men and women, who are covered under the "don't ask, don't tell" rules issued by the Pentagon. Those provide for the discharge of anyone who engages in homosexual activity.

We don't just give you cash for your life insurance policy.
We give you options.

If you are terminally ill, you can pick up the phone and call the viatical settlement company that pays you a single cash payment, usually within 72 hours after approval. They are self-capitalized and backed by one of the largest banks in the country. They are not a broker, so they are able to pay you a higher price. This same firm does all the paperwork for you, has medical expertise in-house, and purchases individual and group life insurance policies with a face value of $10,000 to $2,000,000.

Their confidentiality is second to none; each of their employees adheres to the firm's strict, self-imposed code of ethics equaling or surpassing current government guidelines and proposed legislation.

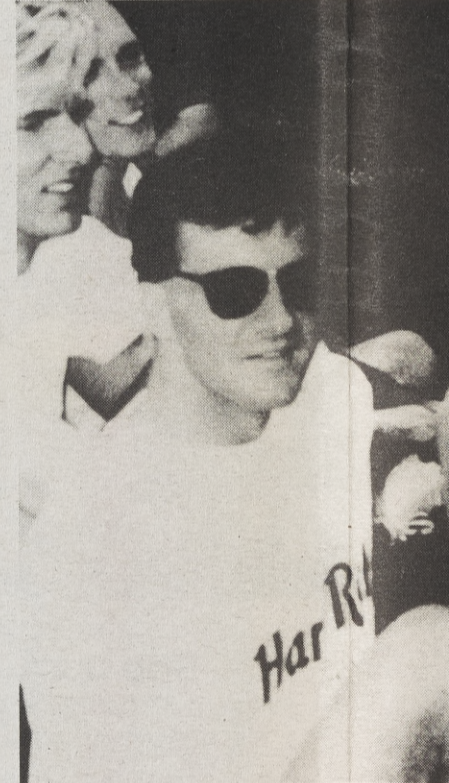

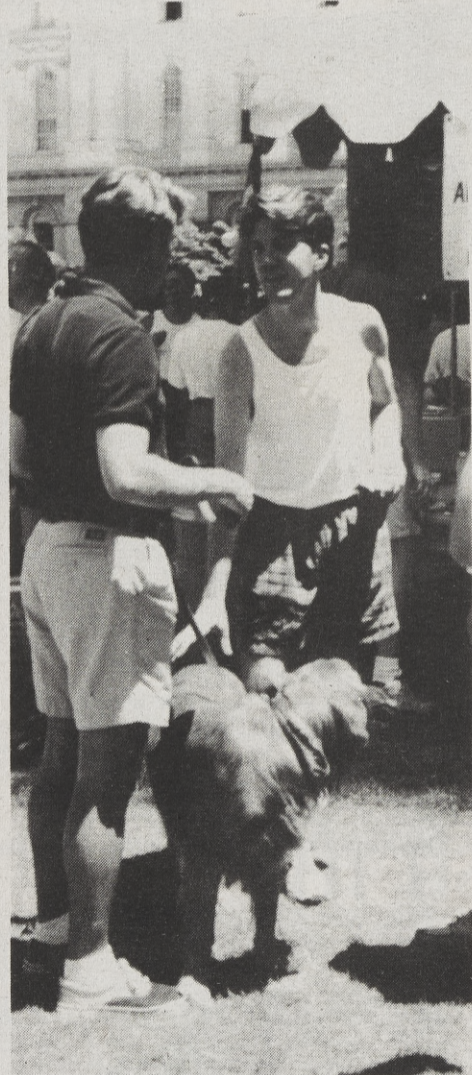

That firm is Legacy Benefits. You have the option: make it simple.

Despite a final, rather implausible plot shift, Widow's Peak is a pleasant and engaging film that is, because of the rich cinematography, better seen in the theater than on video.

Nikki

A tiny gift of love in the person of five-year-old Nikki Michelle Porter Hiatt-Hamilton, went back home to be with the angels on June 9 after a lifelong battle with AIDS.

Five-year-olds are usually mourned by their immediate family and a few close friends; this one touched an enormous number of people with her special magic that granted them the gift of seeing life as something unique to be cherished each day. Nikki communicated with her eyes — blue as the sky, with an impish sparkle that seemed to hold a wisdom far beyond her years. And that great smile could snare your heart and lock it to hers in an instant.

For the past four years, Nikki lived in the loving household of her parents-through-guardianship, Robyn and Eileen Hiatt-Hamilton, and her four siblings-through-guardianship Nick, Wendy, Robert, and Alexandra Hiatt-Hamilton. She is also survived by her mother Darla, grandmother and grandfather Linda and Donald Wheeler, and numerous other relatives.

Nikki visited dozens of Hand-to-Hand trainings, and wordlessly spoke to potential volunteers about living each day to the fullest, about hope, about friendship and love, about sticking together when the going gets rough.

Nikki was a spunky kid who had a good time and knew she was loved. Her family photographs are packed with pictures of visits to the ocean, camping excursions, her Make-a-Wish trip to Disneyland, a drive along the coast that included an up-close discovery of a field of poppies, and a trip to Lake Solano where she got to make friends with the ducks and also meet a not-so-friendly flying peacock. She loved eating pizza, sitting on Santa's lap, and going Trick-or-Treating. She learned to push her own tiny wheelchair. She loved to have bubbles blown in her face and she loved to be picked up and dance to Barry Manilow music.

Donations in her memory may be made to the Falling Star Foundation for Pediatric AIDS, newly founded by Nikki's moms Robyn and Eileen, c/o P.O. Box 231546, Sacramento 95823. ▼

Paul Silva

Former Sacramento resident Paul Silva, 29, died March 10 at the home of his brother Jayme in San Francisco of complications associated with AIDS. A native of Napa, Paul was a popular line-dance teacher and employee of Faces until he moved to San Francisco four years ago.

He was active in the restaurant and catering industry and, for a time, was food and beverage manager for Hyatt Hotels and Resorts. He was a long-time campaigner for AIDS research and services and was active in the gay rights movement. After he moved to the city, he started a business called Positive Greetings, selling T-shirts and cards. He leaves behind many Sacramento friends, including Larry Kellogg, James Ozanich, Chuck Downey, Sonya Cox, and numerous others who will miss his delightful smile and upbeat sense of humor. He also leaves behind his brother Jayme and Jayme's life partner Ray of San Francisco; brothers Steve, Brian, and Nelson, as well as his parents, all of Napa; and an extended family of close friends in Sacramento, Napa, Torrence, and San Francisco.

Acknowledgements may be sent to his brother Jayme Silva at 759 Joost Avenue, San Francisco, CA 94127. ▼

Positive pet care...

Don't give up your pets just because of HIV infection. Learn how to live with them safely instead because the psychological benefits of keeping pets often outweighs the risk of getting sick from diseases they may carry. Research indicates, in fact, that you are far more likely to get toxoplasmosis from undercooked or raw meats, fish, or eggs than from cat, fish, or bird feces.

Have your pets checked by a vet every few months to make sure they stay healthy. Keep their vaccinations up to date. Keep cats indoors and dogs on a leash to minimize hunting or scavaging. People with HIV should avoid feeding their dogs or cats (as well as themselves) raw meat or fish and unpasteurized milk. Don't allow pets to drink from streams or toilet bowls. Do your part for the community by taking a baggie with you when you walk your dog to clean up after it. Minimize your exposure to pet urine, blood or feces, and wash your hands, wash your hands every time you're exposed to these excretions and immediately after changing your litter box, aquarium, or bird cage.

Cat lovers: Have kittens and newly acquired adult cats checked for toxo or damaged immune systems. Adult cats may have already been exposed to toxo and have developed an immunity. Know your cat's status. Change the litter box daily if possible, and wear a mask and disposable rubber gloves to do this. Better yet, have a friend do this for you, and especially avoid this chore if your pet has diarrhea. Get dust-free litter with a box that controls scatter, and keep the litter box away from the dining room, kitchen, or bedroom. If you spend more time than usual in the bathroom, keep it out of this room also. Don't keep litter boxes near food or expose yourself to long periods of breathing in potentially dangerous spores kicked up by your pet. Disinfect litter boxes with boiling water for five minor exotic birds if you can bring yourself to do this. Have a veterinarian check your bird thoroughly for any diseases. Wear a face mask and rubber gloves when changing the cage, and wash your hands thoroughly when the task is completed. Many birds tend to continually kick up and scatter dust around the room as they utes weekly. Keep your cat's nails trimmed and, if scratched, have your physician examine the area—"cat scratch" disease can develop and cause future problems.

Fish lovers: Wear a mask and long gloves when changing fish tanks, and wash your hands thoroughly when finished. If any redness or infection develops where unclean water may have gotten into cuts on your hands, call your physician right away.

Bird lovers: Avoid wild flutter in their cages. Keep the cute critters away from places you spend large amounts of time.

Enjoy your pets, but remember that you have a suppressed immune system. Whenever possible, have a friend (who is not HIV positive) do these cleaning chores for you. Pay attention to what you are putting into your body and lungs, and stay healthy for us. It's a lot of trouble to go to, but those who care about you sincerely appreciate your efforts. ▼

Sizzling with pride

By John Batchelor
MGW/Staff

It is hoped you survived Gay Pride Month in California. It can be overwhelming at times. This is the year we took our celebration to the Capitol. Hope you were there ● Tony Miller Won!!! Also, Tony made the pages of the national gay news magazine, The Advocate! (May 31, '94, Issue 656.) The article examines political races where gay and lesbian candidates are running against opponents with pro-gay track records. If only that was the case in all elections. Now we have to gear up to help Tony win in November against Assembly-member Jones! ● Happy belated birthdays to Mike Tentis, John Linder, Michael Sestak, Chris Meints, Jason Bond, Michael Madden, Jeff Dwaine, Sidney Blackstone, Roger Nuttbrock, Sheila Hanlei, Charlene Mathias, Dann Rudd, Marge Papp, and Tina Costello ● Happy Anniversary to Pete Walsh & Jim Fitzpatrick on their 14th year together. Congrats are also extended to Cris Breivik & Michael Sweeney on an impressive eleven years together. And to all my other readers, let me know when your anniversaries take place ● Nan Goodart made the pages of Anita Creamer's column in the Sacramento Bee. The piece was an informative and heartwarming look at living trusts. As many of you may know that Nan conducts seminars on the subject. ● Joseph and Theo of Joseph's Town & Country (JTC) fame are still in the picture after a brief hiatus. They have moved to the Sierra Inn on Auburn Blvd. and Fulton Ave. Best Wishes ● The Capitol AIDS Walk was a success. One man with unlimited energy, Ted Ross, got together with the computer giant Intel to form a "Friends and Family" contingent. I hope you either walked or sponsored a walker. More details to come... ● No one has missed all the debates in the legislature on the new domestic partners issue. Making another television appearance on the subject were Paul Messenger and Beau Jackson. Little did they know when they first registered at City Hall that the reporters would continue to seek their opinions and insights. Keep up the good work guys ● Parents FLAG continues to work in the River City. The new P-FLAG hotline number is 722-0327. Parents are encouraged to call the number before attending a meeting ● The annual Comedy Auction for Lambda Letters (and the RMCC rebuilding fund) was a great success. There were many enthusiastic bidders and hilarious auctioneers! Bay Area comedians Tom Amiano and Karla Carmony presided over the benefit. Dell Richards was seen bidding on all the food items. After winning the high bid on a basket of pastries from The Bread Store, Dell proclaimed they were for her sick honey at home. We've yet to check with Andrea Jackson to see if the goodies survived the trip home ● Peg Tomlinson, co-owner of Food For Thought Cafe and catering company, announced the company has been awarded the corporate food service contract for SMUD and its employees. The SMUD cafeteria is now named Cafe Electric, and includes many more healthy food choices. The word is out that the cafe has been well received. Food For Thought also welcomes Kimberly Tyler-James as the new Vice President of Corporate Food Service and William O'Rourke as President of Corporate Food Service. Happy eating to all ● Just when you thought you'd tried it all, there's still another "first" around the corner. Karl Greene was coerced into performing in La Cage Awful. (The name speaks for itself.) Apparently he did a rousing rendition of Kate Smith's God Bless

America. And since Karl is a virgin to heels, Hal Griffiths (Vannah) provided the necessary red pumps. Karl claims the shoes became second nature but that spouse Bil Gingrich had to pry them off at the end of

Mark Hales and Andreanne Konomos (yes, a man and a woman) tied the knot recently at the beautiful new Vizcaya (21st & T Streets). This theatrical couple knows how to throw a celebration where everyone is comfortable. The groom even removed the bride's garter to the Village People's YMCA. ● Congratulations to Jim Brown on winning Channel 40's informal spelling bee. The TV spot asked several men and women to spell words from the National Spelling Bee. Jim was the only person interviewed who could spell his word correctly. Way to go ● Until next time—stand tall, stand proud...John▼

Our identity...how we become a self

By Sandra Warne, MFCC
MGW/Staff

In Prior columns I have written about wondering at the "Attachment Stage" of development and at the "Exploration Stage" and the subsequent personality adaptations that result from these wonderings. This time I want to address the "Identity Stage" of development, the process of becoming a Self. The stage of "Identity" (which I refer to as Individuation) takes place between the ages of three and four. I can remember making transient identifications at the time with animals, cartoons, and various things and people.

The identity stage is characterized by obsessive self-assertion with continuous "I," "I want," and "I think." We are the center of our universe. And although, sometimes annoying to parents, it is healthy self-esteem. During this stage the child is expressing personal opinion as he tries to explain to you, and to himself how he is different from others.

If the child's caretakers actually reflect all the varied options of self-image, presented by the child without judgement or criticism, the child will see himself in their mirrored responses, select what feels congruent with his inner feelings, and construct a positive self-image, a firm identity. In addition he will integrate the good and bad traits of the mirroring caretakers and will begin to form an image of his future significant other, imperfect but constant.

Many parents are not comfortable with the "Birth of Self." They become threatened if the child's identifications do not fit their cultural or sexual bias and they refuse to mirror the child's self-assertions, thus producing shame or fear of loss of parents' love. Children learn to repress the rejected aspects of themselves and resentfully become what their parents want. For many gay and lesbian people this may represent the beginning of extreme gender identification conflict.

A lot of selective mirroring has to do with gender, boys getting praised for assertiveness and stoicism, and girls cuteness and helpfulness. The result is, that the child, yearning to be whole, develops a false self by identifying only with parentally or socially approved traits.

The false self is built on socially approved stereotypes, but there is an extremely important other side of the child which gets relegated to the shadows and becomes the "Lost Self." This is the self that often gets compromised to gain parent's love at the expense of his full aliveness.

It is at this stage that the child's boundaries are most powerfully drawn. The child who is selectively mirrored or encouraged to express only a socially acceptable side grows up with very tight boundaries around the disowned core of his natural self. At the other extreme, the boundary of his inflated self-concept is so global that includes all others as an extension of himself. He is a rigid child, and a minimizer with a controlling personality. In adulthood, the rigid child becomes a Controller, who is opinionated, leads a narrowly focused, often self-centered life. He has little access to feelings and lacks empathy with others.

He then chooses a partner who carries the traits of his lost self, and then finds fault with that partner, just as his parents did with him, all the time denying his actions. This identity born of inconsistent and critical parenting needs special attention toward the embracing of the scorned long lost self before a mature commitment can be made to another from a position of wholeness.▼

Feinstein: bill does not create special rights

And I believe that nobody should be denied opportunity especially during these hard times. I also believe that our society should be denied nobody's contribution. Employment decisions should be based on qualifications, and ability, and merit. Not on race, creed, color, disability, sex, or sexual orientation.

I want to commend the distinguished senator from Massachusetts. Clearly, a great deal of thought has gone into the crafting of this bill. It is simple in its approach. It anticipates legitimate concerns, and, I feel, addresses them.

Simply stated, this legislation prohibits employment discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation.

Basically, the legislation follows the approach used in the Americans with Disabilities Act, and provides for the same enforcement powers and remedies as provided for by Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Let us be clear about what this legislation does not do. It does not create special rights or suggest quotas. On the contrary, the Act specifically prohibits preferential treatment or quotas. The act does not apply to members of the Armed Forces, and their is an exemption for religious organizations and educational institutions which are attached to a religious organization.

Like the Civil Rights Act of 1964, small employers with less than 15 employees are not covered by this Act. It does not apply to employee benefits for an employee's partner.

Finally, there can be no disparate impact claim (requiring employers to justify a neutral hiring practice absent any specific evidence of discrimination).

This is well-crafted legislation whose time has come.

Throughout my public life, I have had a simple vision for society. It is one of many different people living together in harmony without fear of bias. Also throughout my public life, gay men and lesbians have been among my employees, and I am proud to have seen them grow and move on to advance in their respective careers.

Our constitution guarantees equal protection. The promise of our nation is one of equality and freedom; of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

Our commitment to equality cannot be a passing one, nor can it be selective. For too long, in too many parts of our country, too many people have suffered the pain of employment discrimination, and have been held back. Opportunity has been denied. And often, along with that lost opportunity, we have lost the contributions of some of our society's most gifted individuals. For the most part, these are losses we will never know. But we can do something to bring those losses to an end. We can pass this legislation.

I believe that a people, when allowed to be free, will make its greatest contribution. That is the vision of America. That is the promise for all. That promise is embodied in this legislation.▼

Hail his Highness, the cat!

By Joan Guertin
MGW/Staff

Dog lovers may not want to admit it, but their rival, the cat, has claimed the title of 'man's favorite pet.' As announced in my last column, the licensing of cats in Sacramento County is, in part, dictated by the fact that cats currently outnumber dogs as family pets. And her first love, there part of the Guertin years.

The interesting thing about cats is their independence, which probably accounts for their acceptance as the pet of choice. A cat can survive on its own more readily than a dog, and needs only its litter box, food, water, and toys if you leave it alone for days. (The cat probably won't even miss you much.) It certainly won't trash the house like the family dog will if left alone unattended.

In addition, a cat has a special dignity and an aura of regality. Of course, my very favorite cats are the big cats. I am in awe of lions, leopards and cougars; the sight of a majestic black and orange striped tiger can set my heart pounding.

Although there aren't as many books written about cats as are written about dogs, a search of booksellers will turn up some interesting tomes. Some—the coffee table variety—feature wonderful pictures of the very photogenic cat, an animal that is capable of twisting its body into all sorts of interesting positions and conjure up magnificent expressions with just the eyes.

For those seeking help with feline problems, we have some knowledgeable people close at hand. On the local scene is Dr. Leslie Cooper at the UCD Veterinary Teaching facility, 753-7549. In San Francisco, Kate Gamble of Cat Behavior by Kate is available for consultations at 415/564-5555.

Well-known behaviorist, Gwen Bohenkamp, has penned a set of cat behavior booklets with noted dog behaviorist, Ian Dunbar. The set of six can be ordered for $10 by calling 415/647-8000. There is also a set of five cassette tapes available, which include: Communicating with Your Cat, Understanding Your Cat, Litterbox Training and Spraying, Destruction and Hyperactivity, and Aggression and Fearfulness. They sell for $7 each; the complete set is $32. Any of the above can be obtained by ordering from James & Kenneth Publishers, 2140 Shattuck Ave., #2406, Berkeley, CA 94704.

If you need to board your cat, call Tricia Timmons at The Country Cattery, a 'vacation resort just for cats.' The exotic feline resort features indoor lodging, the Sacramento area. For information and reservations call 477-PURR (1003).

Every cat lover should subscribe to Cat Fancy. A subscription now includes a membership in Cat Lovers of America and a monthly club newsletter, member discounts, and framable full-color pullouts. A 12-month subscription is $23.97. Write to Cat Fancy, Subscription Dept., Box 52864, Boulder, CO 80323-2864. Also, Tufts University, School of Veterinary Medicine, is now publishing Catnip, a newsletter devoted to the health and happiness of the cat. Write them at Box 420012, Palm Coast, FL 32142-9779.▼
